Latest scour protection survey

It's been a while since our last blog posting, mainly due to the heavy workload we've been experiencing for the last month or so. For the most part we have been continuing with a number of scour protection surveys, being detailed river surveys under railway bridges with cross sections upstream and downstream to enable hydraulic models to be created. In amongst these we have had measured building surveys in London and Hinkley, topographic surveys in the midlands. Railway surveys in Essex and Grimsby.

The high quantity of work continues this month with more scour jobs, measured building surveys and a possible trip to Holland to laser scan a large distribution warehouse.
